Welcome, creator

This starter book helps you plan short AI-generated cartoon reels. Each prompt is an original starting point: adapt the character names, colors, setting and action to match your own series. Different AI tools interpret prompts differently, so results may vary.

How to use this book

1. Choose one prompt and copy it into your AI video tool.
2. Replace the bracketed details with your character and story details.
3. Generate a 10-second clip, review it, then adjust one detail at a time.
4. For a multi-part series, reuse the same character description and visual reference in every part.

The prompt formula

Character + Action + Setting + Visual style + Lighting + Camera + Mood + Duration. Be specific about what the character does and what the camera should show. Avoid asking for many unrelated actions in one short clip.

Consistency tip

Keep a small character sheet: name, body shape, face, outfit, colors and signature accessories. Paste the same description into every scene. If your tool supports reference images or character locking, use the same reference for each part.

Quick quality checklist

Before you publish, check:

■ Is the main character clearly described?
■ Does the scene contain one simple action?
■ Are outfit, colors and face consistent with earlier parts?
■ Is the camera framing suitable for a vertical reel?
■ Are hands, eyes, props and background free from obvious generation errors?
■ Do you have rights or permission to use any music, logos, products or reference material?

A simple 10-second reel structure

0–2 sec: show the character or a visual hook.
2–7 sec: show one clear action or surprise.
7–10 sec: finish with an emotion, reveal or pose. Add captions in your editing app if needed.

Troubleshooting

Character changes: repeat the exact character description and reuse the same reference image.
Too much movement: simplify to one action and request a stable camera.
Messy background: reduce the number of background objects.
Unclear result: specify shot size, subject position and what must remain visible.
